Building Bastrop University

Our recent meetings with local contractors have transformed into a luncheon forum series we are calling “Building Bastrop University”. On Wednesday, September 15, our BBU session focused on local area realtors. Attendees heard presentations from Trey Job, Allison Land, Rebecca Gleason and Vivianna Andres on Bastrop’s development process, development requirements, how new residents can become engaged, and the MyGov system. We received special advice and assistance from local realtor Kerry Fossler, for which we are very thankful.

Over forty people attended, and the overall feedback has been very positive.

Our October 20 session will focus on electrical trades.

Our November 17 session will concentrate on questions and concerns facing engineers and surveyors who lead their clients through the development process.

Our December 15 session will focus on plumbing trades.

No October 11 Meeting

During my City Manager Report during the September 14 Council Meeting, I mentioned that we may schedule an October 11 special meeting of the City Council. After further discussions between the Mayor and I on what we'll need to do to prepare for that meeting, we are no longer planning a meeting for that date. However, I do plan to include on the October 12 agenda item to discuss our way forward on how we develop economic development objectives.

Staff training

It was a whirlwind week of training for staff at the Convention Center. Human Resources conducted trainings on the Safety Manual Tuesday, September 14 and the Employee Handbook on Thursday, September 16. Colin was able to film both days for the employees that were unable to attend. This will ensure that all employees are aware of the changes made to the Employee Handbook and that they receive an overview of the Safety Manual. Overall, the employees were very receptive to all of the changes and appreciative of the new bound books they received.

SH 71 Traffic Shift

On Sunday September 26 at 10:00 pm both eastbound main lanes of SH 21/SH 71 will be closed, and traffic will be diverted to the frontage road using the Hasler Street Exit (just east of SH 304) to allow implementation of a new traffic pattern for east bound traffic. When this work is completed, estimated to be by 5:00 am Monday September 27, the main lanes will re-open at the Hasler Exit and proceed to the east. All eastbound SH 71 traffic will be diverted onto the frontage road beginning just east of Childers Drive (SL 150) utilizing a two-lane exit ramp. Traffic will continue across the Colorado River using the new east bound frontage road bridge. Traffic may return to the SH 71 east bound main lanes using the new entrance ramp just east of the UP-railroad bridges. Frontage road traffic will have access to SH 95 (Jackson St) and Lover's Lane. This traffic phase is anticipated to last for several months while the main lane bridges are replaced.

LCRA Community Development Partnership Program Review Committee

I have been asked to serve on the LCRA Community Development Partnership Program (CDPP) review committee. The committee meets twice per year to review grant applications. The next meeting is Tuesday September 28 in Austin during the lunch hour.

PUC Proposes Its First Set of Rules for Weatherization of Electric Utilities

On September 10, 2021, the Public Utility Commission (PUC) published its proposed rules relating to weather emergency preparedness with a quick public comment turnaround. The comment period closed on September 16, 2021.

The rules are the first of two phases to implement weather emergency preparedness reliability standards. The currently proposed rules include measures for generation entities and transmission service providers in the Electric Reliability Council of Texas (ERCOT) power region, as required by S.B. 3. The League previously reported on S.B. 3 here.

The PUC staff will conduct a public hearing on the rulemaking on September 20, 2021, at 9:30 a.m. in the Commissioners' Hearing Room, 7th floor, William B. Travis Building, if requested in accordance with state law. The request for a public hearing must be received by September 16, 2021.

Post-Session Update: Application of Certain State Statutes to Cities Based on Population

With 2020 census data now available, Texas cities have seen shifts in their population numbers – some more significant than others. These population shifts have the potential to subject cities to new state statutes that apply only to cities with certain populations. Due to the passage of H.B. 2025 during the regular session of the 87th Texas Legislature, state statutes will continue to apply to cities as they did pre-census until September 1, 2023. That is because, as the House Research Organization bill analysis on H.B. 2025 points out, the legislature was unable to update population brackets limiting applicability of certain statutes during the 2021 regular session due to the delayed census data.

Some Texas statutes apply only to cities that have reached certain population thresholds. For instance, a city with a population of 48,000 or more is required to post a meeting agenda on the city’s Internet website. See TEX. GOV’T CODE § 551.056(c). With regard to property taxes, cities under 30,000 population have the flexibility to calculate a “de minimis tax rate” that serves as the trigger rate for an automatic election to approve a tax rate. See TEX. TAX CODE § 26.07. Elsewhere, Local Government Code Chapter 145 requires specific financial disclosures by city officials in cities with populations of 100,000 or more. There are numerous other state statutes like these that apply only to cities with certain populations.

H.B. 2025 provides that a statute that applies to a city having a certain population according to the most recent federal census: (1) continues to apply to the same cities to which the statute applied under the 2010 federal census, regardless of whether the cities continue to have the population prescribed by the statute according to the 2020 federal census; and (2) does not apply to a city to which the statute did not apply under the 2010 federal census, regardless of whether the city has the population prescribed by the statute according to the 2020 federal census. H.B. 2025 expires on September 1, 2023.

What exactly does this mean? Even if the city’s population changed in the 2020 census, the city is still treated as having its 2010 population for purposes of the applicability of state statutes until September 1, 2023. After that date, state statutes will apply to cities based upon their populations under the 2020 census. This delay gives the legislature time to update population brackets in state statute during the 2023 legislative session.

TCEQ Adopts Alternative Language Notice Requirements

On September 10, 2021, the Texas Commission on Environmental Quality (TCEQ) adopted rules that require certain proceedings and applications for TCEQ permits be translated in an alternative language. Specifically, the rules apply to: (1) all air quality permit applications; and (2) water quality or waste permit applications when the closest elementary or middle school nearest to the facility or proposed facility is required by Texas law to provide a bilingual education program. The rules apply only to applications declared by the executive director of TCEQ to be administratively complete on or after May 1, 2022.

Additionally, applicants required to publish an alternative language notice of their permitting action are also required to: (1) translate notice of any public meeting for the applications; (2) provide professional interpretation services at any public meeting; and (3) translate certain information related to a contested case hearing. The required translations will likely result in additional costs for cities seeking these permits.

DIR Adopts Technical Standards on Videoconferencing Calls

The Texas Department of Information Resources (DIR) is required under state law to specify the minimum standards for audio and video signals for meetings that are held by videoconference. To that end, DIR has established these standards to offer technical and operational guidance for governmental bodies hosting an open meeting by videoconference in compliance with the Open Meetings Act. The League has also prepared a memo on videoconferencing procedures, available here.

TCEQ Seeks Stakeholder Input on Upcoming Rulemaking Related to Onsite Sewage Facilities

TCEQ is holding five virtual stakeholder meetings in September and October to present and take comments on rulemaking for on-site sewage facilities and occupational licenses and registrations.

Stakeholder meetings are an opportunity to provide informal comments before formal rulemaking begins. These meetings resulted from petitions that seek to amend rules in Title 30, Texas Administrative Code, Chapters 285 and 30 to:

- Make OSSF regulations more consistent with industry terminology and standards.
- Help identify responsible parties, including definitions of TCEQ licensed individuals.
- Create a new licensing and registration program for sludge pumpers.
